Description	The Port has a stretch of water of about 1,105,300 sq.m, bordered by 1,900 m of operational quays, with depths varying between 8 and 10 m, behind which about 50,000 sq.m of yards are available. It has an entrance (200 m) well protected from all winds and it is used for commercial and industrial traffic. Port piloting, towing and mooring services are insured; there is a shipyard for pleasure craft. There are platforms offshore for the production of hydrocarbons, connected to each other and to the coast by submarine pipelines. 35% of the traffic in the port is due to international navigation and 65% to coastal navigation. Typically, the freights consist of 87% of bulk, 11% of various components and 2% of dangerous ones. Land access to the port takes place both from the S.S. 106 Ionian and from the S.S. 107 Silana-Crotonese.
